THE ASK IN ONE SENTENCE

Procafecol must narrow its expansion to five high-conviction markets, deploy three transversal pillars (traceability, purpose, flexible models), and adopt a country-specific playbook for each — moving from a portfolio of 38 fragmented presences toward focused, capital-light growth that doubles revenue by 2030 and lifts international sales above 40%.

SECTION 01

STRATEGIC CONTEXT & CHALLENGE

THE MANDATE FROM THE BOARD

- Double Procafecol's revenue by 2030 — the non-negotiable financial target.
- Reduce dependence on Colombia from >70% of sales today toward an international mix of at least 40%.
- Lower the number of priority markets from the 38-country sprawl that the board considered diluted and unfocused.
- Build a defensible analytical framework for market selection, entry mode, and resource allocation.

> "The board approved the overall direction but flagged two risks: too many markets, and a framework that did not separate where to invest from where to retreat. We were asked to come back with conviction — fewer markets, stronger logic."
>
> — Camila Escobar, CEO context, 2023

THE STARTING POINT — WHERE PROCAFECOL STANDS IN 2022

DIMENSION	2022 SNAPSHOT	IMPLICATION
Total stores	535 (357 Colombia, 178 abroad)	Heavy domestic concentration; abroad footprint thin in most markets
Mass-consumption presence	1,486 outlets in Colombia · 9,968 in >30 countries	Channel reach exists — store-led brand awareness lags it
Brand category	Premium, purpose-driven, B Corp certified (2021)	Differentiation is real but under-monetized internationally
Past failures	Mexico (franchisee closed 2020) · Florida US (franchisee weak)	Franchising without co-investment + due diligence destroys value
Past successes	Chile, Ecuador (JV), Turkey (1→6 stores 2021–2022)	Right partner + right model = exponential scaling possible

THE REAL PROBLEM — THREE LAYERS

Layer 1 · Portfolio sprawl: 38 markets is not a strategy — it is a list. Without prioritization criteria, capital and management attention dilute across countries that will never deliver scale.

Layer 2 · Wrong default model: Pure franchising worked in Turkey but failed in Florida and Mexico. The lesson is not "franchise less" — it is "match the model to the market."

> Layer 3 · Under-leveraged narrative: Juan Valdez owns the only ownership-by-farmers story in premium global coffee. In 2022 it is barely visible at point of sale outside Colombia.

WHAT THIS DOCUMENT DELIVERS

- A five-market shortlist across three categories (Transformation · High-Growth · Strategic), with a clear “why this country, why now.”
- Three transversal pillars that travel across every market and protect brand coherence.
- A country-by-country play with differentiator, channel, model, and risk explicit.
- An internal-capability roadmap (governance, talent, tech) that the organization needs in parallel.
- A do / don’t list for the CEO to use as a decision filter through 2030.

SECTION 02

KEY INSIGHTS FROM THE FIVE PRIORITY MARKETS

From the 38-market universe, our screening — combining quantitative variables (per-capita coffee consumption, market growth, Starbucks density as a proxy for premium absorption, urban GDP) and qualitative variables (brand awareness, partner availability, regulatory openness, cultural fit) — converges on five markets in three categories.

5	3	3	40%+
PRIORITY MARKETS	STRATEGIC CATEGORIES	TRANSVERSAL PILLARS	INTL. REVENUE 2030

THE FIVE-MARKET SHORTLIST

MARKET	CATEGORY	THE ONE INSIGHT THAT CHANGES THE GAME	WHY IT EARNS A SLOT
SPAIN	Transformation	Spain is not a market — it is a European hub. Local roasting changes the unit economics for the entire continent.	Cultural affinity, language, port infrastructure (Valencia), partner availability (Trinity), 7th-largest European branded-coffee market.
UNITED STATES	Transformation / Strategic	The US retail coffee market is losing volume but gaining value. Premium origin wins; commodity loses. Hispanic consumer is structurally aligned.	No country compares in scale. 60%+ of Hispanic population in 5 states = natural beachhead. Past failure was the playbook, not the demand.
BRAZIL	High-Growth	Brazil produces more coffee than it exports — and still consumes 7× more than Colombia. The opportunity is selling premium experience, not commodity coffee.	Premium urban segment ~R$4–5B growing 15–20% annually. Starbucks vacuum after SouthRock collapse opens space. Multinationals already accepted (Nespresso, Illy, L'OR).
CHINA	High-Growth	Per-capita consumption is 0.05 kg — and growing ~15% annually. China + US = 72% of global café-spend growth. Half-Taiwan consumption = world's 3rd largest market.	43% of new global coffee-store openings in next 5 years will be in China. Colombian coffee exports to China grew +17% in 2022. Digital ecosystem enables low-CAPEX entry.
TURKEY	High-Growth	Turkey is a UNESCO-recognized coffee culture that produces zero coffee. No national pride to fight. Café = social space, exactly where Juan Valdez excels.	Already validated: 1 store (2021) → 6 (2022). Franchise model proven. Platform for MENA expansion (UAE, Saudi Arabia, Qatar already adjacent).

> "Five is not a small number — it is the maximum number our organization can .
> Better to win conclusively in five than to perform mediocrely in twenty."
> — Origen Strategy Group, internal screening conclusion

WHAT THESE MARKETS HAVE IN COMMON

- An urban premium consumer with disposable income who already pays a premium for differentiated coffee experiences.
- A structural opening: Starbucks dominance is eroding, specialty is fragmented, or the market is too new for any player to own it yet.
- A plausible local partner — without which any entry should be deferred or canceled.
- A cultural angle Juan Valdez can authentically lean into (heritage, origin, social ownership) without forcing it.

WHAT THESE MARKETS DO NOT HAVE IN COMMON

- The same entry mode — JV in Spain, co-investment in US, master sub-franchise in Brazil, two-phase digital-first in China, full franchise in Turkey.
- The same time horizon to profitability — Turkey (12–18 months), Spain (24 months), Brazil (24–36 months), US (36+ months), China (36+ months).
- The same risk profile — currency volatility (Turkey, Brazil), competitive intensity (US), brand-pride friction (Brazil), regulatory complexity (China).

SECTION 03

TRANSVERSAL STRATEGIES — THREE PILLARS

Three strategic pillars apply across all five markets. They are the operating DNA that protects brand coherence regardless of country, partner, or channel mix.

01

TRACEABILITY & TECHNOLOGY

QR code on every cup, bag, capsule. Photo, region, altitude, cup profile, story of the farming family. Converts internal traceability into a visible marketing weapon.

02

PURPOSE & SUSTAINABILITY

B Corp + Race to Zero + the unique "owned by 550,000 farming families" narrative. Purpose is the tiebreaker when quality and price are matched.

03

FLEXIBLE ENTRY MODELS

No single recipe. Joint venture, master franchise, co-investment, retail-first or digital-first. Capital-light wherever possible, strategic control always.

PILLAR 1 — TRACEABILITY & TECHNOLOGY

APPLICATION	WHERE IT HITS HARDEST
CHINA	The novice consumer who "does not know coffee" needs a reason to pay above Luckin's 9.9 RMB. The QR delivers narrative value instantly — buying purpose, not just caffeine.
UNITED STATES	"Meet the farmer who grew this coffee" — campaign integrating QR with social-media content from individual growers. Defends premium price against Stumptown / Blue Bottle anonymity.
SPAIN	Reinforces B Corp positioning to a consumer increasingly sensitive to origin and ethical sourcing.
BRAZIL	The differentiator against local pride: traceability by individual farm is something no Brazilian commodity coffee can offer.
TURKEY	Origin authentication in a 100% importer market. The QR confirms Colombian provenance — the entire reason the consumer chose Juan Valdez over a generic chain.

Investment lens: Traceability platform is a one-time CAPEX (~$0.8–1.2M) with recurring marketing leverage across every cup sold globally. ROI flows through ticket-size lift, NPS, and direct e-commerce conversion.

PILLAR 2 — PURPOSE & SUSTAINABILITY AS COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE

- The unique claim: Juan Valdez is the only global premium coffee brand directly owned by its 550,000 farming families. Starbucks cannot say this. Blue Bottle cannot say this. No supermarket brand can.

- B Corp visible everywhere — packaging, stores, digital. Especially powerful with 25–45-year-old premium consumers in US and Europe.
- Race to Zero by 2050 — the European logistics hub in Valencia (see Section 4) materially reduces transport-emissions footprint.
- Quantifiable storytelling — "Each coffee buys 30 minutes of schooling for a coffee grower's child." Specific. Verifiable. Emotional.
- Where it amplifies most: US, Spain, Brazil. Where it is a strong tiebreaker: Turkey, China.

PILLAR 3 — FLEXIBLE ENTRY MODELS

MODEL	WHERE IT APPLIES	PROCAFECOL STAKE	WHY IT FITS
Joint Venture	Spain (Trinity)	20% (minority)	Local partner with retail muscle; Procafecol preserves capital, retains brand control.
Co-Investment	United States	30–40% (strategic)	Skin in the game restores investor trust after Florida; transitions to lower stake when proven.
Master Sub-Franchise	Brazil	Royalty + supply	Capital-light for volatile macro environment; co-invest in flagship stores only.
Two-Phase Digital + JV	China	Minority + royalty	Validate demand on Tmall / JD.com before any physical store; scale via partner with digital ecosystem mastery.
Full Franchise	Turkey	Royalty only	Already validated; partner trusted; macro volatility argues against direct exposure.

> “The single most important lesson from Mexico and Florida:
> . Every model in this proposal corrects for that.”
>
> — Origen Strategy Group, model selection rationale

SECTION 04

COUNTRY-BY-COUNTRY STRATEGIES

One page, one decision per country. Each play is built around four columns: differentiator, channel, model, and the dominant risk that could break it.

MARKET	DIFFERENTIATOR	PRIMARY CHANNELS	OPERATING MODEL	DOMINANT RISK
SPAIN TRANSFORMATION	European hub: 100% Colombian origin + B Corp + cultural-language affinity. Single-origin specialty in a Starbucks-saturated landscape.	Stores (prime + airports — Palma de Mallorca as proof-of-concept), e-commerce, packaged retail, HORECA via local roasting in Valencia.	Joint venture with Grupo Trinity (Trinity 80% / Procafecol 20%) as master franchisee + logistics alliance to anchor Valencia hub.	Trinity dependency: financial distress at the partner stalls the entire European plan. Mitigation: performance clauses + buyout option.
UNITED STATES TRANSFORMATION	"The only premium coffee brand owned by 550,000 farming families." Hispanic-cultural authenticity no global competitor can replicate.	Florida-Texas beachhead stores · premium retail (Whole Foods, Trader Joe's, Wegmans) · Latin-focus retail (Publix, HEB, Sedano's) · Costco bulk · Amazon DTC · RTD cold brew · Nespresso/K-Cup capsules.	Co-investment LLC (Procafecol 30–40%) with institutional anchor partner (e.g., L Catterton, Reyes Holdings); transition to 15–20% after 3 profitable years.	Premature multi-state expansion. Mitigation: 3-year EBITDA-positive rule per store before opening in next state.
BRAZIL HIGH-GROWTH	Washed process + altitude + 23 regional profiles + farmer ownership. Five technical and narrative differentiators against local commodity.	São Paulo-Rio premium stores (Jardins, Itaim Bibi, Leblon) · airport stores (Guarulhos, Congonhas) · capsule partnership · retail premium (Pão de Açúcar, St Marche).	Master sub-franchise model with regional sub-franchisees; Procafecol co-invests 25–35% in flagship stores only; royalty + coffee supply revenue.	Brazilian coffee pride blocking acceptance. Mitigation: cultural-humility positioning ("Os Dois Gigantes" campaign) — never compete with commodity, only with experience.
CHINA HIGH-GROWTH	The only Western premium coffee brand with a 64-year cultural icon and verifiable origin. QR-WeChat integration delivers traceability native to the platform.	Phase 1: digital-first on Tmall + JD.com + boutique pick-up stores (universities, office buildings) + RTD in 7-Eleven / FamilyMart. Phase 2: flagship stores in	Master franchise with partner offering digital-ecosystem fluency (Alibaba/ WeChat) + last-mile logistics + premium real-estate access.	Novice-consumer abandonment to tea. Mitigation: hybrid "fashion coffee" menu (jasmine-

		Shanghai & Beijing tier-1 luxury zones.	Procafecol minority + royalty.	honey latte) educates the palate without sacrificing premium positioning.
TURKEY HIGH-GROWTH	Colombian origin in a 100% importer market with no national-pride friction. Café-as-social-space format aligns natively with Turkish consumption ritual.	Stores in Istanbul / Ankara / Izmir (bazaars, malls, business districts, airports) · packaged retail through partner network · expansion to MENA capitals as platform.	Full franchise with current partner — already validated (1→6→14 stores 2021–2023). Royalty-only; Procafecol assumes no operating capital risk.	Currency volatility & political-economic instability. Mitigation: royalty in USD/EUR; concentration cap on partner exposure; staggered expansion to MENA via separate franchisees.

SEQUENCING LOGIC — WHY THIS ORDER MATTERS

2023–24	2024–25	2025–27	2027–30
TURKEY + SPAIN VALIDATE	US + BRAZIL BEACHHEADS	CHINA SCALES DIGITAL → STORES	ALL FIVE COMPOUNDING

- Turkey and Spain first — lower entry barriers, partners identified, model validated quickly. Generates the cash flow and learning to fund harder markets.
- US and Brazil next — higher capital requirement, longer payback, but the markets where the brand needs to win to justify a global premium positioning.
- China last in physical stores — but first in digital channels. E-commerce on Tmall/JD validates demand without CAPEX; physical stores follow only after data confirms traction.

> Non-negotiable sequencing rule: No market opens its second store until its first store has 18 months of EBITDA-positive operation. Growth never justifies dilution of brand or unit economics.

SECTION 05

EXPANSION MODEL & INTERNAL CAPABILITIES

The five-market plan only works if the organization is rebuilt to support it. Capability gaps — not market choice — are the most common cause of international failure. Below: the five capabilities Procafecol must build or strengthen by 2025.

CAPABILITY 1 — CENTRALIZED GLOBAL OPERATIONS FUNCTION

- Bogotá-based Global Operations team led by an international Chief Operating Officer reporting to CEO.
- Country Managers assigned to regional clusters (Americas, Europe, MENA, Asia) — not individual countries — to streamline overhead.
- Standardized monthly business reviews per market with a common dashboard.

CAPABILITY 2 — REGIONAL HUBS THAT CUT COST-TO-SERVE

HUB	FUNCTION	WHY IT MATTERS
Valencia (Spain)	Roasting, packaging, distribution for all of Europe via Mérica subsidiary	Reduces transport costs and emissions from Colombia; shortens HORECA delivery times; protects supply against geopolitical disruption.
Istanbul (Turkey)	Operational platform for MENA expansion (UAE, Saudi Arabia, Qatar)	Leverages existing partner relationships and proven format; reduces incremental entry cost in adjacent Gulf markets.
Miami (US)	Hispanic-market marketing & distribution coordination for Florida-Texas-Northeast triangle	Anchors the Hispanic-consumer go-to-market; co-located with key retailers and trade-show calendar.

CAPABILITY 3 — PARTNER SELECTION DISCIPLINE (THE FLORIDA ANTIDOTE)

Every prospective partner — franchisee, JV co-investor, master licensee — must clear all four criteria before signature:

- Capital depth: demonstrated balance sheet to absorb 24+ months of pre-profit operation without cutting brand standards.
- Operational track record: minimum five years operating premium F&B or premium retail in the target market.
- Co-investment: personal or institutional skin in the game — never a pure license arrangement.
- Cultural alignment: verified commitment to the purpose narrative; quality non-negotiables; willingness to host Procafecol's embedded operations manager for the first 12 months.

> Hard rule: When in doubt, do not sign. Florida 2022 cost more than not entering would have. The right partner is worth waiting 12 months for.

CAPABILITY 4 — BRAND IMPLEMENTATION TOOLKIT (GLOCALIZATION WITH GUARDRAILS)

- Non-negotiables: 100% Colombian origin · barista-prepared coffee (no fully automatic machines) · QR traceability on every cup & bag · B Corp visible · purpose narrative present.
- Locally adaptable: menu (e.g., horchata in Spain, jasmine latte in China, hybrid drinks in MENA) · interior design accents · partnerships with local cultural figures · seasonal beverages · payment integrations.
- Mystery-shopper program in every market quarterly; corporate visits at least twice per year per country.

CAPABILITY 5 — EARLY-WARNING SYSTEM

INDICATOR	THRESHOLD FOR ALERT	REQUIRED ACTION
Same-store sales growth	Negative for 2 consecutive quarters	Country business review; pause new openings.
QR scan rate	<15% of transactions	Local marketing audit; staff retraining.
NPS (consumer survey)	Drops >10 points vs prior period	Quality & service deep-dive; barista certification check.
Royalty collection rate	<95% on time	Partner financial-health review; trigger contract review.
Store-level EBITDA margin	Below local plan by >500 bps	Unit-economics rebuild before any expansion in that market.

SECTION 06

THE ROLE OF PURPOSE — ADVANTAGE VS FRICTION

Procafecol's leadership has a recurring internal question: how much weight should "purpose" carry in the international playbook? Our position: purpose is a force multiplier, not a substitute for execution. It opens fewer doors than people assume — but closes far more sales than people credit.

PURPOSE AS ADVANTAGE

- Tiebreaker in saturated markets (US, Spain): when quality and price are matched, the "owned by 550,000 farming families" story tips the choice.
- Investor magnet: institutional capital with ESG mandates evaluates Procafecol favorably vs alternatives — material in raising US co-investment.
- Talent attraction: differentiated employer brand for baristas and country managers in markets where labor competition is fierce.
- Premium-price defense: gives the consumer a verifiable reason to pay 3–5× commodity price, blunting Starbucks/Dunkin price wars.
- PR and earned media: B Corp + farmer-ownership generates story-led press in every entry market — reduces paid-marketing requirement.

PURPOSE AS FRICTION (BE HONEST)

- Quality must come first: in Brazil and Italy, no purpose narrative survives a bad cup of coffee. Quality is the entry ticket; purpose is the upsell.
- Risk of preachy positioning: over-leaning on social impact alienates the "I just want a great coffee" consumer. Calibrate dosage by market.
- Cannot mask weak unit economics: a purpose-driven brand losing money is still a brand losing money. Investors will eventually demand returns.
- Authenticity is fragile: a single quality failure or labor controversy in Colombia would compromise the global narrative. Operational discipline is the moat.
- In China and Turkey: purpose lands as a secondary reason. The primary reason is product quality and store experience. Lead with those.

> "Purpose won't always open doors — but quality does. When the customer is choosing between two equally good brands, purpose becomes the reason to stay. That is exactly when it earns its return on investment."
>
> — Procafecol leadership, internal articulation, 2022

CALIBRATION BY MARKET

MARKET	PURPOSE DOSAGE	LEAD WITH
UNITED STATES	HIGH	Farmer-ownership narrative + B Corp + Hispanic cultural authenticity. Make purpose the front-of-cup message.
SPAIN	HIGH	B Corp + sustainability + cultural affinity. Reinforces premium positioning vs Starbucks ubiquity.
BRAZIL	MEDIUM	Differentiation through technical quality (washed process, altitude, regional profiles); purpose as the “why we’re different from a multinational” layer.
TURKEY	MEDIUM-LOW	Origin authenticity + experiential store + product quality. Purpose visible but not dominant.
CHINA	LOW (Phase 1) → MEDIUM (Phase 2)	Phase 1: convenience, functionality, hybrid drinks. Phase 2: as the brand premiumizes in flagship stores, surface the farmer-ownership narrative for status-driven specialty consumers.

SECTION 07

KEY STRATEGIC DECISIONS — DO / DON'T

The hardest part of strategy is not what to do — it is what to refuse to do. The list below is the CEO's decision filter for every choice through 2030.

DO

- Concentrate on five markets with conviction — Spain, US, Brazil, China, Turkey.
- Lead with stores in mature markets (US, Spain) and lead with retail/digital in scale-economy markets (China, Brazil mass-consumption).
- Co-invest with every franchise partner in complex markets — never license blindly again.
- Build the European hub in Valencia — single move that lowers cost-to-serve across the continent.
- Activate the QR-traceability platform globally — same investment, applied to every cup in every country.
- Use Turkey as MENA platform; use Spain as European platform. Two leverage plays from two markets already won.
- Adopt the 18-month EBITDA-positive rule before opening any second store in a new market.
- Protect the brand non-negotiables: 100% Colombian origin, barista-prepared, purpose narrative present. Adapt everything else.
- Pursue institutional capital with ESG mandates — Procafecol's purpose narrative converts here.

DON'T

- Do not maintain 38 markets. Exit, downgrade, or consolidate the long tail of small-presence countries.
- Do not enter Japan or the UK in this strategic horizon. Refined-coffee markets demand cost and margin discipline Procafecol cannot match yet.
- Do not re-enter Mexico until the right partner is found — emotional pull from existing customer demand is not a strategy.
- Do not open multi-state in the US based on one successful Florida cluster. Texas only after Florida proves the model.
- Do not compete with Brazilian commodity coffee. The premium urban segment is the only winnable game.
- Do not deploy automated coffee machines in any flagship store. Baristas are part of the value proposition.
- Do not pure-franchise without co-investment in any high-stakes market. Florida and Mexico were the tuition.
- Do not over-promise purpose: every claim must be quantifiable and auditable.
- Do not let one partner's failure stall an entire region. Diversify partner exposure inside MENA and Europe.

THE THREE STRATEGIC TRADE-OFFS THE BOARD MUST ACCEPT

TRADE-OFF	WHAT PROCAFECOL GAINS	WHAT PROCAFECOL GIVES UP
FOCUS over OPTIONALITY	Deep, defensible positions in 5 markets that compound into 2030.	The optionality of opportunistic entries elsewhere; some board members may feel “less ambitious.”
CO-INVESTMENT over CAPITAL-LIGHT	Aligned partners, controlled brand execution, sustainable unit economics.	Higher upfront capital requirement in US and Brazil; slower top-line growth in early years.
PREMIUM over VOLUME	Margin protection, brand equity, the only positioning Juan Valdez can defend.	Permanent exclusion from the largest volume segments (mass commodity in Brazil, value-coffee in US).

The investor lens: A focused five-market strategy with co-investment models offers a cleaner ROI story than a 38-market sprawl. Where is the return concentrated? US (long-term scale) + Spain (European hub multiplier) + China (option value if Phase 1 validates) + Turkey (highest near-term cash on cash) + Brazil (largest premium urban TAM in Latin America).

SECTION 08

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

The strategic recommendations in this document are supported by a separate financial projection model maintained as a working file (Procafecol_Indicadores_Financieros.xlsx). The model is the quantitative backbone of the “double by 2030” mandate and tests this strategy against the board’s revenue and international-mix targets.

WHAT THE FINANCIAL MODEL VALIDATES

- Revenue trajectory to 2030 consistent with the “double the business” board mandate, segmented by market and channel.
- International revenue mix reaching the >40% threshold by 2030, driven primarily by Spain (European hub leverage), the United States (premium retail + stores), and Turkey (rapid franchise scaling).
- Capital deployment phasing matching the country sequencing (Turkey/Spain 2023–24, US/Brazil 2024–25, China 2025–27).
- Unit economics per market — store-level CAPEX, payback period, EBITDA contribution by channel mix (stores ≈ 55% gross margin · mass consumption ≈ 30–35% gross margin with materially lower CAPEX).
- Sensitivity analysis on the principal risk variables: FX volatility (Turkey, Brazil), competitive pressure on price (US specialty), and partner-execution risk.

> Note for the board: The Excel model should be reviewed quarterly against the early-warning indicators in Section 5. Strategic decisions change when the data changes — but only the data, not the framework.

THREE INDICATORS THE BOARD SHOULD TRACK QUARTERLY

QR Scan Rate	Comp. Store Sales	Royalty Collection
BRAND ENGAGEMENT	UNIT ECONOMICS HEALTH	PARTNER RELIABILITY

CLOSING — THE THREE MANDATES FOR 2023

MANDATE	OPERATIONAL TRANSLATION
DISCIPLINED VELOCITY	Do not open additional markets until the first five reach 18 months of EBITDA-positive operation. Growth never justifies brand dilution.
PARTNERS, NOT FRANCHISEES	Every partner must contribute capital, local operating muscle, and alignment with the Juan Valdez purpose. The four-criteria filter is non-negotiable.
MEASURE WHAT MATTERS	QR scan rate, NPS, comparable-store sales, royalty collection rate. These four indicators tell the board whether the strategy is working — long before financial statements do.

> “The board’s question was never whether Juan Valdez can go global. The question was . This strategy answers with evidence, with metrics, and with an executable roadmap.”
